A CATALYST FOR CHANGE

When Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett announced a renewed effort to meet our city’s workforce development needs in June 2016, he not only named new leadership for EmployIndy – Angela Carr Klitzsch as President and CEO, Marie Mackintosh as COO, and several new community leaders to join the EmployIndy Board of Directors – he also promised a targeted, integrated approach to workforce development that will focus on meeting the needs of Indianapolis residents in areas of the city that are most affected by poverty and unemployment.

Anchored by a commitment to achieving the Mayor’s vision and maintaining transparency with the community through and beyond the organization’s leadership transition, EmployIndy’s leadership embarked on a highly inclusive, community-driven planning process beginning in August 2016 with support from the trusted nonprofit consulting firm Hedges & Associates.

DEFINING EMPLOYINDY’S FOCUS

EmployIndy recognizes that it has a unique responsibility to leverage partnerships with regional workforce stakeholders and community initiatives to achieve two strategic priorities for Indianapolis:

1. Reduce barriers for individuals to allow them to progress from A job, to a Better job, to a Career
2. Reduce barriers for employers to meet their demand for low to mid-skilled workers
LOOKING AHEAD, EMPLOYINDY HAS CEMENTED ITS COMMITMENT TO PURSUING THESE PRIORITIES BY MEETING THE NEEDS OF INDIANAPOLIS RESIDENTS IN AREAS OF THE CITY THAT ARE MOST AFFECTED BY POVERTY AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

Beginning with a focus on the Indianapolis zip codes of the disinvested areas prioritized by the Mayor’s Office (46201, 46205, 46208, 46218, and 46235), EmployIndy carefully considered the complementary neighborhood areas covered through Quality of Life Plans as well as the specific neighborhoods identified through IndyVitals as part of Indy 2020, the Bicentennial Plan for Indianapolis. Based on the overlapping geography of these areas, workforce development efforts illuminated through each neighborhood’s Quality of Life Plan, and corresponding indicators of unemployment and poverty for the residents of these neighborhoods, ultimately, EmployIndy has committed to primarily focusing its resources on the following Target Impact Areas:

- Near NW Riverside
- Crown Hill
- Mapleton Fall Creek
- Fairgrounds
- Meadows
- Forest Manor
- Martindale Brightwood
- Fair Eastside
- Christian Park
- Arlington Woods
- Eastside
- Far East Side
- Lawrence

By prioritizing efforts in these Targeted Impact Areas and taking active steps toward building a more equitable approach to workforce development, EmployIndy aims to grow our city’s potential from the inside, supporting all Indianapolis residents as they pursue the American Dream.
LISTENING TO THE COMMUNITY

With a commitment to developing a strategic plan for EmployIndy that is both reflective of and responsive to the real needs of these targeted impact areas and the Indianapolis community as a whole, EmployIndy engaged over 300 community stakeholders between August 2016 and July 2017 to help identify community-driven solutions to reducing barriers for employers and job seekers.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT STRATEGIES INCLUDED:

- a series of eight town hall style Community Listening Sessions with educators, employers, philanthropists, direct service providers, and other concerned citizens from across the Indianapolis community
- Phone Interviews with key community leaders representing the Mayor’s office, public education, the City County Council, local employers, and the faith community
- three Focus Groups with residents of targeted impact areas
- an Electronic Survey completed by 80 stakeholders from a variety of sectors
- Break-Out Sessions with youth service provider attendees of the Promise of Tomorrow, Purpose of Today convening of national youth employment programs hosted by EmployIndy and Strada Education Network

Individuals from across the Indianapolis community voiced thoughtful, productive feedback during these community conversations about a variety of challenges that will be necessary for EmployIndy to address as the organization renews its emphasis on workforce development in our city’s urban core.

Stakeholders from all sectors agreed that before a job seeker of any age who is unemployed or residing in a disinvested neighborhood can meet the needs of an employer, oftentimes he or she must first overcome inhibitors to employment such as a criminal record, untreated mental health issues, or language barriers, all of which continue to create some of the most pressing barriers to getting a job. Once these inhibitors are addressed, the individual must then also have his or her basic needs fulfilled in order to begin an effective path toward seeking employment. Only then, once these initial barriers are addressed, does acquiring basic employability skills become important.

Unfortunately, much of the workforce development system’s historic approach has focused on providing unemployed individuals with employability skills through both general and industry specific education and training in an effort to meet the demands of employers. Armed with invaluable feedback from the Indianapolis community and knowledge of innovative strategies of other Workforce Development Boards throughout the country, EmployIndy recognizes that this approach to workforce development has missed the opportunity to address some of the most powerful, foundational barriers that prevent individuals not only from securing employment, but ultimately, from having the opportunity to progress from A job, to a Better job, to a Career.
Creating an Effective Workforce Ecosystem

Successfully supporting job seekers to address these barriers so they can effectively meet the demand of employers will require not only efforts of the job seekers themselves, but also a collaborative system of support provided through a variety of contributions from cross-sector partners, including employers, community-based organizations, educators, and other system-wide supports.

EmployIndy envisions this collaborative network of cross-sector partners building an effective Workforce Ecosystem for Indianapolis, where the contributions of all sectors will work symbiotically to help job seekers address barriers so they can effectively meet the demands of employers at all stages of the ABC continuum.
